

Reconstruction in the South

The Reconstruction Act, passed March 2, 1867, divided the states of the Confederacy, with the exception of Tennessee, into five military districts, each under the control of a Union official supported by armed troops.

